

June 5, 2014

Dolphins Guide Scientists to Suicidal Girl

Maddalena Bearzi, National Geographic

The Associated Press

One day, my research team and I were following a school of bottlenose dolphins near shore as we do on a regular basis in the waters off Los Angeles, California. We just wrapped up our photo-identification work and were moving on to take video of dolphin social interactions and enter data on behavior.

Read Full Article >>

TAGGED: Dolphins

FEATURED ON RCS FROM

National Geographic

- ▶ Why I Climb Dangerous Mountains
- ▶ Obama Calls for 30% Reduction in CO2 Emissions
- ▶ Comb Jellies Uproot Animal Family Tree
- ▶ Blame Humans for California Wildfires
- ▶ Keep Ice Sheet 'Collapse' in Perspective
- ▶ New Era in Search for Life About to Begin
- ▶ Virus Kills Millions of American Pigs
- ▶ How a Few Species Are Hacking Climate Change
- ▶ Relative to Size, Mite Is Fastest Land Animal
- ▶ Cold War Spy Satellites Reveal More Lost Cities